DISABILITY EQUALITY SCHEME

Angus Council is delighted to introduce our first Disability Equality Scheme, covering the period up to 2009.

In the council, we recognise people are different and have different needs. We also recognise that people with disabilities have experienced different barriers during their lifetime.

Within our Disability Equality Scheme there are principles and standards which we will apply internally, in partnerships and in contractual arrangements. As a service provider, we need to be sensitive to differences and tailor services to be fair and accessible to people with disabilities.

As an employer, these principles and standards will advance equality issues so that our workforce reflects the diversity of the community. We recognise our accountability to the public, and our hope is to promote equality of opportunity and positive attitudes towards people with disabilities, and to eliminate any unlawful discrimination and harassment they may experience.

The action plan sets out our priorities up to 2009. We will ensure that over this period, our action plans, guidance and arrangements set out in the scheme are monitored through the involvement of people with disabilities, and their carers or representatives.

Our overall aim is to create practical improvements in the day to day lives and experiences of people with disabilities.

1 INTRODUCTION

Background

The Disability Discrimination Act 2005 amended the provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 (DDA). The original DDA 1995 established the legislative requirement for the prevention of discrimination against people with disabilities, and for improving physical access to buildings and goods and services. Under the new Act, Angus Council, as a local authority, must now also actively promote equality of opportunity for people with disabilities, through action plans for tackling discrimination, and by involving them in policy making.

The new duties import the concept of mainstreaming disability rights issues into public authority decision-making. The Westminster government's vision for disability equality is that by 2025, people with disabilities in Britain 'should have full opportunities and choices to improve their quality of life and will be respected and included as equal embers of society'. ('Improving the Life Chances of Disabled People')

Many people with disabilities experience poverty, disadvantage and social exclusion due to others' attitudes or physical barriers, (ie the 'social model of disability') rather than their impairments or medical conditions. Some attitudes are unintentionally discriminatory, such as expressing pity, fear, or contempt, but these attitudes can still place restrictions on people with disabilities.

As a local authority, we need to be aware of these issues and contribute to removing environmental and attitudinal barriers by looking at how we run our services and employ people, and encourage best practice within the community.

Definition of Disability

Disability is legally defined as a physical or mental impairment, which has a substantial or long-term adverse effect upon a person's ability to carry out normal day-to-day activities.

A further explanation of these terms is detailed in Appendix A.

The General Duty

The Act places a General Duty on public authorities to have due regard to:

- a) The need to eliminate discrimination that is unlawful under this Act.
- b) The need to eliminate harassment of people with disabilities that is related to their disabilities.
- c) The need to promote equality of opportunity between people with disabilities and others.
- d) The need to promote positive attitudes towards people with disabilities.
- e) The need to encourage participation by people with disabilities in public life.
- f) The need to take steps to take account of an individuals disabilities, even where that involves treating people with disabilities more favourably than others.

This last clause recognises that equality of opportunity cannot be achieved by treating disabled and non-disabled people the same. It is different from other anti-discrimination laws because it does not prohibit positive discrimination in favour of people with disabilities.

'Due regard' means giving appropriate weight to promote disability equality in proportion to its relevance.

Angus Council recognises that the general duty requires us to have due regard to past decisions, as well as future ones. We will work towards addressing any gaps in service delivery or employment in respect of disability equality, through consultation with people with disabilities.

The Specific Duties

The council, as a public body, must adopt a series of specific duties to comply with the General Duty.

The key element is that we are required to produce a disability equality scheme. The scheme must include a statement of the following:

- a) The ways in which people with disabilities have been involved in its development.

- b) The method for assessing the impact of our policies and practices, or the likely impact of our proposed policies and practices, on equality for people with disabilities.
- c) The steps which we propose to take towards the fulfilment of the general duty i.e. an 'action plan'.
- d) The arrangements for gathering information on the effect of our policies and practices on those with disabilities, and in particular our arrangements for gathering information on:
 - i) The effect of the recruitment, development and retention of our employees with disabilities.
 - ii) The effect on the educational opportunities available to, and on the achievements of, pupils and students with disabilities.
- e) Our arrangements for making use of such information to assist in the performance of the General Duty and, in particular, our arrangements for:
 - i) Reviewing on a regular basis the effectiveness of the steps referred to in (c) above, and,
 - ii) Preparing subsequent disability equality schemes.

There is also a duty upon councils as education authorities to prepare a separate Disability Equality Scheme, for schools. This is available separately through the Education Department.

The specific duties as stated serve as a means to an end. They are steps, methods or arrangements, not an end in themselves. Meeting the general duty is the main objective.

Fulfilling this objective should help make equality central to policy making and service delivery, and help us consider the effects of disability equality in all our activities.

Angus Council – Our Intentions

Angus Council employs approximately 5,500 employees. We have six departments, namely Chief Executive's, Corporate Services, Education, Infrastructure Services, Neighbourhood Services and Social Work and Health. Some departments have a high level of contact with people with disabilities already, such as in Social Work and Health, Education and the Housing division of Neighbourhood Services. Other departments, such as Corporate Services, have limited contact, however, the council will ensure that all departments are uniformly committed to disability equality from senior management downwards.

There has already been a significant amount of work undertaken in some services, for example:

- anyone whose GP confirms their disability will have their household waste wheeled out for them.
- an ACCESS Officer is in place and there is ongoing involvement of the Angus ACCESS Panel in building standards.
- much work has been undertaken regarding the lowering of kerbs etc.
- there has been a huge amount of partnership working with NHS Tayside, and consultation events, such as Service Users – Day Opportunities which people with learning disabilities were involved in. Five meetings over the summer 2006 were held and there was one video interview. More than 130 people attended the events.

The Action Plan (Appendix F) details other work already undertaken and requiring to be reviewed in light of the new legislation.

Our intentions in terms of disability equality are to:

- comply with legislative requirements
- take account of the Disability Rights Commission's (DRC) Code of Practice.
- recognise that people with disabilities are not a homogenous group. We acknowledge that people with different impairments have fundamentally different barriers, and very different experiences. We also recognise that people with disabilities can be of any gender, sexual orientation, race, religion or faith and age.

2 CONTEXT

To set the context for Angus Council's Disability Equality Scheme, it is useful to consider:

- The population and number of people with disabilities living in Angus
- The council's Corporate Plan and duties in connection with Community Planning
- The council's Equal Opportunities Policy
- Working in partnership.

Population

Angus is predominantly a rural area covering approximately 2,200 square kilometres. It is bordered by Aberdeenshire, Perth & Kinross and Dundee City councils. The 2001 Census shows that Angus has a population of over 108,000, largely concentrated in seven principal settlements: Arbroath, Brechin, Carnoustie, Forfar, Kirriemuir, Monifieth and Montrose, although there are significant numbers of residents in the Angus Glens and rural locations.

Of the 108,000 people living in the area, approximately 20,500 are aged over 65. In terms of disability equality, it is important to know the age demographics in the Angus area, as it is acknowledged that as age increases, disabilities increase. For example, approximately 80% of hearing impaired people are aged over 60 and demographic projections suggest there will be a 20% increase in people with hearing impairments in Scotland over the next twenty years, due to the aging population.

In terms of adults unable to work due to illness or disability, the numbers can be measured by those claiming Incapacity Benefit or Severe Disablement Allowance. In Angus (February 2006) this number equates to approx 4,500 (source NOMIS).

Disability Living Allowance is payable to people who have a disability and who have personal care needs, mobility needs or both. In Angus (February 2006) approximately 4,900 people claimed this allowance. The following table shows the breakdown of claims in Angus:

Reason	Percentage of Claims
Arthritis	21%
Mental health	19%
Hearing difficulty	12%
Other	12%
Muscle/bone/joint	8%
Back ailments	6%
Chest disease	4%
Heart disease	4%
Diabetes	4%
Blindness	2%
Deafness	2%
Epilepsy	2%
Malignant disease	2%
Stroke related	2%

It is useful for us to consider the above breakdown of disabilities in respect of the services we provide.

In Home Care, for example support, personal care and practical help is provided to enable people to live as independent a life as possible. Out of 1,839 clients in 2005, the majority received a service because of physical disabilities and for eight out of 10 people this is due to frailty as a result of aging. Approximately 80% of home care clients are aged 65 or over.

The above profile highlights that there are a considerable number of people in Angus living with a disability. The implications for us as a service provider are significant. We need to consider the resources required for people with disabilities, for example, the physical environment, and in particular, their communication and information needs.

Corporate Plan

The Local Government in Scotland Act 2003 gives the council and other organisations – specific duties in connection with Community Planning, with the council being given the lead role.

The concept of Community Planning provides a way in which all public services affecting citizens within a particular local authority area can work together at a local level to develop strategies which achieve clear benefits for all citizens within that area.

The council's Corporate Plan reflects this concept aiming to build on the council's achievements to date, laying more emphasis on working in partnership with other statutory agencies and with communities, and paying particular attention to the views of our citizens and to parts of Angus where significant development may take place.

The Corporate Plan lays out the vision of the Council:

“We will focus our attention on, and be led by our customers and residents. We will work to deliver effective and efficient services that are available to everyone. We will promote the following:

- Active involvement in society
- Equal opportunities for everyone
- Developments that last
- A thriving economy
- Lifelong learning
- Healthy, safe and caring communities
- Quality in our environment

The Council's approach to promoting disability equality therefore has to be considered against our three major roles as community leader, service provider and employer.

To a great extent each of these roles is inter-dependent. The role of community leader will only be credible with diverse disability groups if the Council is taking their service needs seriously. The Council can only improve service delivery if we have a workforce which reflects, recognises and responds to the diversity needs of communities. The emphasis on the workforce reinforces the Council's credibility in its role as a community leader.

The Council's Equal Opportunities Policy

In February 2001 the Council adopted a comprehensive Equal Opportunities Policy.

This Policy outlines the Council's intent in respect of equal opportunities and incorporates specific Codes of Practice on Service Delivery, Access to Council Information, Communication and Consultation with members of the community and Monitoring. It also incorporates a Code of Practice on Equal Opportunities and Employment which had been previously agreed by the Council.

In that Policy the Council includes the following within its Statement of Intent:

“Angus Council supports the principle of equal opportunities in the provision of its services to the community and in relation to employment. The Council opposes all forms of unlawful or unfair discrimination on the grounds of race, ethnic or national origin, religion, age, sexual and marital status and disability.”

The Council believes that our Equal Opportunities Policy forms a sound basis and provides the strategic framework for our Disability Equality Scheme.

Partnership Working

The Council in its role as community leader recognises the importance of working with partners in reviewing overall strategy and direction and ensuring that strategy can be implemented in cost effective ways to the benefit of all Angus citizens.

In respect of disability issues, there are already established and effective links with other partners, in respect of disability issues in particular with the community care forum, and NHS Tayside, as well as having service level agreements in place within the voluntary sector, for example with Tayside Association for the Deaf.

We aim to work with our partners, sharing information regarding disability issues as appropriate to improve the quality and means of service delivery and to ensure that consultation is undertaken efficiently and with minimum intrusion, in order to avoid consultation fatigue for those individuals.

Within this spirit of partnership working, the council will ensure that jointly with our partner agencies, the General Duty to provide disability equality is met.

3 DISABILITY EQUALITY STRATEGIC AIMS

The Council's approach to disability equality is based on the principles outlined in our Equal Opportunities Policy.

As outlined in that Policy's Statement of Intent:

"Angus Council supports the principle of equal opportunities in the provision of its services to the community and in relation to employment. The council opposes all forms of unlawful or unfair discrimination on the grounds of race, ethnic or national origin, religion, age, sexual and marital status and disability."

The Council will strive to ensure that disability equality is achieved through:

- Ensuring that the Equal Opportunities Policy is effective, properly applied and monitored
- Consulting with all sectors of the community regarding the planning and delivery of services, especially those groups whose views may be underrepresented
- Consulting with employees with disabilities in respect of policy-making processes
- Compliance with the requirements of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 (DDA) as amended by the DDA 2005
- Ensuring that companies applying for inclusion in select or approved lists, bidding for contracts and working under contracts take reasonable steps to comply with the above legislation
- Training employees in their responsibilities to promote disability equality
- Working towards a more diverse workforce and ensuring that employment policies promote a non discriminatory working environment
- Monitoring the council's Disability Equality Scheme
- Using the council's complaints procedure to process complaints from members of the community who feel they have been treated unfairly on the grounds of their disability
- Removing harassment of people with disabilities which is as a result of their disability, and encouraging best practice within the community by promoting disability equality.
- Provide fair and accessible services by looking at the way we provide information, our communication systems, as well as continuing to improve physical access to relevant areas of council buildings.

The above together with the rest of this Disability Equality Scheme, builds upon the Statement of Intent as contained within the Equal Opportunities Policy.

4 SPECIFIC DUTIES: SERVICE DELIVERY

The council will use the 'social' model of disability, which focuses less on the person's medical condition or impairment, and more on the social barriers and/or attitudes of others. We aim to concentrate on empowering or enabling people rather than focusing on their disability.

To ensure we meet our legislative obligation under the General Duty, we have developed an Action Plan (Appendix F), focusing on the core areas of:

- i) involving people with disabilities
- ii) impact assessing policies and practices
- iii) service delivery
- iv) communication
- v) physical access
- vi) procurement

Our Action Plan also includes a section on Employment. This area is dealt with separately under the Specific Duties: Employment, section.

(i) Involving people with Disabilities

The Angus Community

In order to ensure that we accurately reflect the views of people with disabilities, we have involved a range of people from the Angus community who have a disability or who are caring for someone who has a disability, or who have an involvement with disability issues in the development of this Scheme, and the Action Plan in particular.

We used existing links via the community care forum, and local voluntary organisations. We involved service users from Social Work and Health and also placed a request for volunteers on our website which was successful. We met with a broad range of disabled people at a consultation event in order to develop the Disability Equality Scheme.

Questionnaires regarding the suitability of our service provision were also discussed with relevant stakeholders. The template is attached as Appendix H.

The council has adopted a Code of Practice on Communication and Consultation with Members of the Community as part of our Equal Opportunities Policy and which is attached as Appendix B and we are looking to have long-term engagement with relevant stakeholders, through establishing an advisory group.

In order to avoid consultation overload or fatigue for participants, the council co-ordinates consultation exercises and also makes use of 'citizens' panels and Angus Access Panel. Where appropriate the council also aims to build on existing collaboration with external parties such as NHS Tayside, other local authorities and Tayside Police, in order to share knowledge and experience with regard to the needs and aspirations of people with disabilities.

Employee Involvement

An article was placed on the council's employee intranet to inform employees of the disability equality obligations, and to encourage employees with disabilities to consult with us. We have also requested volunteers from friends, family and carers of people with disabilities, and those interested in disability issues.

We will continue to use volunteers on an ongoing basis regarding our impact assessment of policies/future developments.

Through involvement with people with disabilities, we will ensure that we develop and maintain effective methods of communication and consultation with employees. We will meet regularly with them, and develop questionnaires for feedback on how we are performing.

(ii) Impact Assessing Policies and Practices

The council is required to include in our scheme a statement of our methods for assessing the impact of our policies and procedures, or their likely impact, on equality for people with disabilities.

Policies and procedures covers all proposed and current activities, both written and unwritten e.g. custom and practice.

The purpose of undertaking impact assessments is to ensure that our policies and practices do not disadvantage people with disabilities, and also to identify where equality of opportunity could be enhanced.

We recognise that impact assessing disability equality should be a corporate responsibility, embedded within our culture and mainstreamed throughout the organisation.

We have adopted a basic template called a Policy Control Document (Appendix G) to review existing policies and procedures and assess all proposed ones.

The Policy Control Document will ensure a corporate approach is adopted and that there is a standard clear process to be followed for the review, development and adoption of all policies and procedures, relevant to disability equality.

The law requires that a policy with potential for major impact on people with disabilities, should undergo a full impact assessment.

Judgement will be made against relevant policies and practices as to how significant the impact could be on people with disabilities.

A high, medium, or low level of prioritisation system will be used as follows:

High Impact: views will be sought from employees with disabilities, local community stakeholders, and relevant national organisations. Other public bodies may be approached who have similar policies, in order to share experiences.

Medium Impact: consultation with employees with disabilities and local community stakeholders will take place.

Low impact: no formal consultation will take place.

By following the steps as indicated in the Policy Control Document process, we will look to identify evidence or research findings to show that the policy may be affecting people with disabilities in an unfair manner, and may need to be changed.

Each department will prioritise their policies and procedures in terms of the relevance to the General Duty.

It may be necessary for the council, for example due to other legislation, having considered alternatives, to implement a policy which may have an adverse impact on people with disabilities. If so, monitoring mechanisms and regular reviews will be put in place with changes made, as appropriate to lessen the adverse impact wherever possible. The corporate Equal Opportunities Officer Group will monitor any policies or procedures which fall into this category.

We aim to complete all screening and impact assessments by 2009.

(iii) Public Access to Services

The council is committed to the provision of quality services to the Angus community and opposes any discrimination in relation to the delivery of these services.

We have adopted a Code of Practice on Equal Opportunities and Service Delivery as part of its Equal Opportunities Policy which is attached as Appendix E.

We aim to adhere to the terms of that Code of Practice.

(iv) Public Access to Information

The council aims to ensure that all members of the community have equal access to information regarding our services.

As indicated earlier we have adopted a Code of Practice on Equal Opportunities and Access to Council Information as part of its Equal Opportunities Policy, Appendix D refers.

We aim to adhere to the terms of that Code of Practice.

For both access to services and information the public are made aware of the availability of alternative formats through posters, the internet and through our staff who are trained in disabilities awareness and the need to promote equal opportunities.

(v) Procurement

Although the General Duty does not override other laws or regulations in public procurement, procurement may be relevant to the General Duty to promote disability equality in regard to:

- services provided under contract or agreement
- contractors equal opportunities policies and practices

We will:

- revise standard contracts to ensure suppliers are compliant with disability legislation. Potential contractors will be made aware that any service they provide must be without disability discrimination
- revise contracts and service level agreements to ensure service providers are compliant with disability legislation. New suppliers will be made aware that any service they provide must promote disability equality
- provide support, for example with alternative format facilities, to any business requiring such assistance to enable it to tender for contracts
- give guidance and support, where necessary, to contractors to aid their understanding in order to comply with their duties.

5 SPECIFIC DUTIES: EMPLOYMENT

(i) Monitoring

We are committed to creating a workforce which reflects the diversity of the community and acknowledges the benefits of employing a diverse workforce. Accordingly, more comprehensive disability monitoring is necessary to assess our performance in relation to key aspects of employment.

In recent years, we have introduced a new HR database, Resourcelink, which is increasingly able to provide appropriate equal opportunities' statistics. However, the need for further development in some areas remains, for example, the collation of statistics for employees with disabilities attending training.

At present, reports are available in respect of the numbers of people with disabilities applying for posts, and subsequently offered employment, and for the percentage of employees with a declared disability.

We acknowledge that there may be many employees who have not declared a disability, either through fear/suspicion; or because they do not regard themselves as having a disability; or because they have become disabled during the period of their employment. It is our aim by Summer 2007, to gain more accurate information by asking employees to complete a confidential monitoring form, explaining what disability means and how the information will be used for statistical purposes only.

We will also develop systems to monitor those employees with declared disabilities who:

- i) apply for and undertake training
- ii) apply for promotion
- iii) raise a grievance
- iv) are subject to disciplinary procedure
- v) leave the council

Monitoring reports will not include any individual's personal details and confidentiality will be a priority.

In addition, we monitor claims of harassment/bullying under the Harassment at Work Policy. During the period 2005/06 no one indicated harassment/bullying due to their disability.

The council will use the results of its disability monitoring to determine whether:

- our Equal Opportunities Policy is working
- there are inappropriate differences between employees with disabilities and those without and will
- investigate the reasons for any differences and deal with unfairness, disadvantage and discrimination

We consider the most appropriate means of reporting such information is annually each Spring with other annual reports, which are accessible on the internet, and the internal employee website.

(ii) Recruitment

We are committed to ensuring equality of opportunity for all applicants for employment.

In respect of disability equality, the organisation is recognised as having a positive attitude towards people with disabilities by subscribing to the principles of the Employment Service Double Tick symbol. This ensures that as long as they meet the minimum essential criteria for a job, people with disabilities will be guaranteed an interview for a council post.

The council, along with Perth & Kinross and Dundee City, jointly funds an Employment Disability Unit (EDU), which provides work experience placements for people with disabilities looking to either enter or re-enter employment. We also refer enquiries to the EDU regarding reasonable adjustments to the working environment, and take advice from them in respect of the latest, most appropriate aids and devices for people to become or remain employed by the council. In addition, we have accessed resources through the Jobcentre's Access to Work, financing a number of reasonable adjustments to help people with disabilities work in the council.

We do acknowledge, however, that more action is necessary to attract people with disabilities as employees. We will consult relevant stakeholders to further develop appropriate actions in this important area.

(iii) Reasonable Adjustments

During the course of their employment, an employee may become disabled. It may be that a reasonable adjustment is required for them to be able to continue in their current position, for example chairs designed for back problems have been purchased, or specialised workstations for using the computer more effectively have been designed, as well as alterations to provide improved physical access.

Any employee who feels a reasonable adjustment is necessary, can raise the matter initially with their line manager. It may be necessary for the council's Medical Adviser to give advice, or for the EDU to become involved, but all requests will be investigated.

6 EMPLOYEE TRAINING AND AWARENESS RAISING

For a considerable number of years, the council has provided Disability Awareness training which is open to all employees, but particularly for all front-line employees. Several hundred employees have attended the course, from managers to receptionists. In light of disability equality, we will review the training course and amend as appropriate.

In recent years other training courses have been revised to ensure equality compatibility, as follows:

- Induction
- Management Training
- Customer Care
- Recruitment and Selection

Compulsory diversity training for senior managers commenced in 2004, and a diversity course open to all employees, was launched in 2006. A significant number of elected members also attended a diversity awareness session in 2006.

Harassment training for the council's Harassment Contacts has been ongoing over the years and will be continued.

As a result of race equality legislation the following standard paragraphs are now included in letters to external trainers commissioned by the council and which are sent when training arrangements for courses are confirmed. These paragraphs will now be amended to include disability equality as well as racial equality.

".....Angus Council must ensure that any organisation providing us with goods or services has due regard to the need to eliminate unlawful [racial] discrimination and to promote equality of opportunity and good relations between persons of different [racial] groups. Any materials used in the delivery of services must also comply with these duties.

This clearly includes the content of training courses and any associated supporting material. Can you please confirm that your organisation complies with this?"

Departmental training co-ordinators will also be advised of their obligations for training commissioned directly by them.

We will endeavour to make all employees aware of the contents of the Disability Equality Scheme through the council's intranet facility, the employee newsletter and departmental briefing arrangements.

We are also committed to producing a disability awareness booklet, to be issued to all staff, as part of our action plan.

7 COMPLAINTS

While the council will do its best to meet the duties placed upon it under the Disability Discrimination Act it is recognised that on occasion people may be dissatisfied.

We will attempt to deal with any complaints received in relation to this duty through the Council's Complaints Procedure which allows service users to make complaints about any aspect of the council's service or policies.

Under this procedure the service provider will deal with the complaint initially and attempt to resolve the problem at the first point of contact

If the complainant is still not satisfied, there is a three stage procedure to be followed:

Stage 1 The complaint will be electronically logged with a unique reference number to the complainant. The complainant will be responded to within ten working days.

Stage 2 If the complainant wishes to take the matter further, they must lodge a written complaint to the service director, who will appoint a senior manager to investigate the complaint. The service director will respond within 15 working days.

If the complainant is still not satisfied with the outcome of the Stage 2 investigation, they can complain to the Chief Executive.

Stage 3 The complainant should write to the Chief Executive setting out why they are still dissatisfied. The Chief Executive will conduct a full review of their complaint and will provide a full report on the outcome of the review within 20 working days.

If the complainant is not satisfied with the council's response, they will be advised of their right to refer the matter to the Scottish Public Services Ombudsman.

Leaflets about the Corporate Complaints Procedure are available to the public.

Some council services are the subject of statutory complaints procedures which may vary from this system.

The council will inform individuals of this right as part of the above procedures.

The Act does not give individuals a right to take legal action against the Council for failing to fulfil its duties under the Disability Discrimination Act but individuals can inform the Disability Rights Commission, as the body responsible for enforcing compliance, if they have concerns or complaints about whether the duties have been met by the council.

8 ACTION PLAN

To complement this Disability Equality Scheme, we have adopted an action plan for the first three years. Progress will be reported annually.

Responsibility for the action plan lies with the council's Disability Working Group, consisting of senior employees from each council department. Ultimately it is the Equal Opportunities Officers Group's responsibility to monitor that individual departments are fulfilling their targets.

The Education Department has produced its Action Plan in its own Disability Equality Scheme.

Appendix F outlines an action plan for the period up to 2009.

9 ADVISING THE PUBLIC AND EMPLOYEES OF PROGRESS

We will review and monitor progress against our Disability Equality Scheme on an annual basis.

A report on progress will be submitted to Committee and put on the council's web site. Progress will also be reported in the council paper "Angus Life" which is distributed to every Angus household.

In accordance with our Code of Practice on Equal Opportunities and Access to Council Information, facilities to provide this report into alternative formats, such as audio, larger print or Braille, are available wherever a need is identified.

The mechanisms for advising employees and trade unions of progress are under review. Currently employees are advised of progress by means of information contained in:

- the employee newsletter, Angus Matters, and
- the corporate internal website.

10 REVIEW OF SCHEME

This initial Disability Equality Scheme covers the period up to 2009. We will work with our employees and members of the community to produce a revised scheme by November 2009 and every three years thereafter. Policies and functions which have been identified and prioritised are subject to annual review and action plan targets for each year will also be reviewed annually. The scheme is a living document and changes in circumstances or further legislation may occur.

The review of the Scheme within the council is delegated to the Equal Opportunities Officer Group which comprises senior representatives from each council department.

We are committed to annually reviewing our progress of the Scheme prior to the comprehensive review in 2009.

Defining Disability

The aim of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 (DDA) is that it should protect people who would generally be regarded as having a disability. This is why the Act defined disability as a physical or mental impairment which has a substantial and long-term adverse effect on a person's ability to carry out normal day to day activities.

Physical impairment: this includes, for instance, a weakening of part of the body (eyes, ears, limbs, internal organs etc.) caused through illness, by accident or congenitally. Examples would be blindness or visual impairment, deafness or hearing impairment, paralysis of a leg and heart disease.

Mental impairment: this includes mental illness and what is commonly known as a learning disability.

Substantial: this means the effect of the physical or mental impairment on ability to carry out normal day to day activities is more than minor or trivial. It does not have to be a severe effect.

Long-term adverse effect: the effect has to have lasted, or be likely to last, overall for at least 12 months and the effect must be a detrimental one. A person with a life expectancy of less than 12 months is, of course, covered.

A normal day to day activity: this is something which is carried out by most people on a fairly regular and frequent basis, such as washing, eating, catching a bus or turning on a television. It does not mean something as individual as playing a musical instrument to a professional standard or threading a needle.

What sort of effect must there be?

The person must be affected in at least one of the respects listed in the Act: mobility; manual dexterity; physical co-ordination; continence; ability to lift, carry or otherwise move everyday objects; speech, hearing or eyesight; memory or ability to concentrate, learn or understand; or perception of risk of physical danger.

What happens if the effects are reduced by medication or other treatment?

The effects that matter are those that would be present if there was no medication or treatment taking place. The exception is people who wear spectacles or contact lenses when what matters are the effects that remain while the spectacles or contact lenses are being used.

CODE OF PRACTICE ON COMMUNICATION AND CONSULTATION WITH MEMBERS OF THE COMMUNITY

Aims

The Council aims to ensure that it develops and maintains effective methods of communication and consultation with all members of the community regardless of race, ethnic or national origin, religion, age, sexual and marital status and disability.

Guiding Principles

- Area Forums and Citizens Panels will be used to encourage representation from the whole spectrum of the Community to develop and maintain communication and consultative links with the Council. These methods of communication will be regularly reviewed to ensure that they continue to promote equality of participation by the whole community.
